“Where are the Fathers?”
Relational Approaches for Domestic Violence Exposure in Early Childhood

- Become familiar with a range of possible infant mental health interventions for children exposed to domestic violence, including Dr. Lieberman’s innovative “Co-Parenting” model.
- Clarify steps for assessing which approaches are indicated, with a focus on safety of the intervener and the family:
  a. When is inclusion of the violent partner indicated or contraindicated?
  b. If both partners are included, how do interveners avoid polarization?
- Explore how involvement of both partners is actualized (parallel dyadic and triadic engagement and engagement strategies)
- Learn strategies to help parents view their relationship in context of its impact on the child, and in context to their parenting goals with the child.
- Investigate strategies to help the child contextualize—but not justify parental violence.
